MASONIC LODGE OF REMEMBRANCE

A Masonic Lodge of Remembrance also known as a Masonic Lodge of Sorrow is a special meeting held by Freemasons to remember and honor members who have passed away. During this meeting, members of the lodge come together to pay their respects and offer condolences to the families of the deceased members.

The Lodge of Remembrance is typically led by the Worshipful Master, who presides over the ceremony and delivers a eulogy for the deceased member. The ceremony may also include prayers, hymns, and other rituals that are specific to the Masonic tradition.

In addition to honoring the deceased members, the Lodge of Remembrance also serves as a reminder of the temporary nature of life and the importance of cherishing the time we have with our loved ones. It is also a time for the members to reflect on their own mortality and the importance of living a virtuous and moral life.

The Masonic Lodge of Remembrance is an important part of the Masonic tradition, and it serves as a way for members to come together to support each other during a time of loss. It also helps to remind them of the values and principles that they hold dear as Freemasons, such as brotherhood, charity, and the search for truth.

It is also a time where members are encouraged to reflect on their own lives and to strive to live a better life. They are reminded that death is not the end and that life is a journey that continues even after death.

In sum, a Masonic Lodge of Remembrance is a solemn and meaningful ceremony that serves as a reminder of the importance of community, honor, and the journey of life.
